More reasons to wander to the Kimberley

West Australians are being encouraged to make 2021 the year to visit the Kimberley, one of the world's last true wilderness areas, with a new incentive on offer for potential travellers.

The Kimberley Wanderer Pass is giving travellers $300 towards participating tours and experiences in Kununurra and surrounds (the eastern gateway to the Kimberley), when they buy an airline ticket from Perth to Kununurra through Virgin Australia.

The offer applies to new bookings made from now until September 30, 2021, unless sold out, and visitors will receive information about how they can access their pass within three days of making their booking.

The Kimberley Wanderer Pass is valid at more than 20 businesses across the region, giving visitors discounted access to experiencing attractions such as the Bungle Bungle Range in World Heritage-listed Purnululu National Park, El Questro, Lake Arygle, Ord River, Mitchell Falls and more, with a range of land, air and boat tour operators participating.

With the region having experienced heavy rainfall through its wet season, otherwise known as 'waterfall season', the landscape has been replenished, waterfalls are flowing across the region, and tourism operators are ready to welcome visitors.

More information, and the top 10 ways to experience Kununurra and surrounds, can be found here.

World's biggest fish returns to Ningaloo

Whale sharks, often known as the gentle giants of the ocean, have returned to World Heritage-listed Ningaloo Reef, heralding the start of the 2021 whale shark season. Tours are now operating from Coral Bay and Exmouth, with the season typically occurring between March and July each year, triggered by the annual coral spawning during a full moon. This year, the first whale sharks were spotted early, and following a successful extended season in 2020, some operators will be offering shoulder season tours through until October.

Ningaloo Reef remains one of the best places in the world to swim with whale sharks. Not only are sightings reliable – as it is one of the only places on Earth where these marine giants congregate on an annual basis to feed on plankton and krill – but the tours are also responsibly run by a small group of licensed professional operators to ensure a sustainable whale shark experience, with only a maximum of 10 swimmers in the water at any one time.

World's biggest dam mural opens in Collie

The world's biggest dam mural has officially opened in the South West town of Collie – located a two hour drive from Perth. The 8,000 square metre Wellington Dam mega-mural was painted by internationally-renowned Australian artist Guido van Helten, and is inspired by local stories and photographs which reflect the community. The mural – Reflections – is spread across the Wellington Dam wall within the Wellington National Park, just west of the Collie town centre, and represents how the waterways are culturally significant to both locals and visitors.

The Wellington Dam mural forms the centrepiece of the new Collie Mural Trail, an expansive outdoor art gallery connecting the dam with Collie's town centre. The trail showcases the talents of over 30 Australian artists, including many Collie locals, with 40 murals currently included in the trail.

Unique documentary showcases WA marine life

WA's stunning coastlines and marine life are beautifully showcased in a new documentary - Jaimen Hudson: From Sky to Sea. Produced by Sea Dog TV, the film follows the inspiring story of Jaimen Hudson and his quest to become the world's first underwater cinematographer with quadriplegia. The film captures Jaimen's journey along the WA coastline, from his life growing up in Esperance in WA's Golden Outback, to his first filming expedition on the water to see humpback whales off Rottnest Island in Perth, culminating in his attempt to film, and snorkel with humpback whales and whale sharks at Ningaloo Reef. Jaimen lives in Esperance, and took up drone photography and videography after a motorbike accident left him in a wheelchair. Since then, Jaimen has become a social media sensation, with his spectacular aerial photography and videography of the region's coastlines and marine life – in particular whales and dolphins - now seen by millions online. The film is now showing in select cinemas across Australia and New Zealand, with global streaming also available. Watch the movie trailer here.
